DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 23-28, 30, 33, 35, 39-46, 48, 51, 55, and 56 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Igaue et al. (RE 35,687).

With respect to claims 23, 35, 41, and 51, Igaue discloses a protective undergarment dressing 1, as shown in figure 1, comprising an integrally formed body 13b of an elastic liquid impermeable material, an absorptive device 14 associated with a first portion 8 of the body 13b, and a fibrous layer 12 affixed to the inner surface of the body 13b in a second portion 9, 10, as shown in figure 3. The undergarment dressing 1 is formed by associating the absorptive device 14 with the body 13b and affixing the fibers 12, as shown in figure 3.

With respect to claims 24, 39, 42, and 55, the fibers 12 are affixed to the inner surface of the body 13b in all portions except the portion associated with the absorptive device 14, as shown in figure 4.

With respect to claims 25 and 43, the second portion 9, 10 is formed with multiple perforations 15, as shown in figure 3.

With respect to claims 26 and 44, the first portion 8 is not perforated, as shown in figure 3.

Art Unit: 3761

With respect to claims 27, 40, 45, and 56, the outer surface of the body 13b comprises fibers 13a affixed thereto, as disclosed in column 2, lines 50-51.

With respect to claims 28 and 46, the liquid impermeable material is rubber, as disclosed in column 2, lines 48-49.

With respect to claims 30 and 48, the first portion 8 extends outward beyond the absorptive device 14, as shown in figure 3.

With respect to claim 33, the undergarment is underpants, as shown in figure 1.

Claims 23, 24, 28, 29, and 34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Clarke et al. (5,149,336).

With respect to claims 23 and 34, Clarke discloses an undergarment, a brassiere, as shown in figure 5. The garment comprises an integrally formed body 18 formed of a liquid impermeable material. An absorptive device 24 is associated with the inner surface of the body 18 in a first portion, and a fibrous layer 22 is affixed to the inner surface of the body 18 in a second portion, as shown in figure 5.

With respect to claim 24, the fibers 22 are affixed to the inner surface of the body 18 in all portions except the portion associated with the absorptive device 24, as shown in figure 5.

With respect to claim 28, the liquid impermeable material is rubber, as disclosed in column 6, lines 60-62.

With respect to claim 29, the fibers are cotton, as disclosed in column 5, lines 43-45.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 29, 37, 47, and 53 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Igaue et al. (RE 35,687) as applied to claims 23, 35, 41, and 51 above, and further in view of Paul et al. (6,060,638).

Igaue discloses all aspects of the claimed invention but remains silent as to the type of fibers 12 used. It is common knowledge in the art to use cotton fibers to form the bodyside liner of an absorbent article, as disclosed by Paul in column 4, lines 12-27. It would therefore be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to make the fibers of Igaue cotton, since it was well-known in art to form a bodyside liner from cotton fibers.

Claims 31, 32, 49, and 50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Igaue et al. (RE 35,687).

Igaue discloses all aspects of the claimed invention with the exception of the undergarment dressing being seamless. It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to make the garment seamless, since the applicant has not disclosed that the lack of seams serves any particular purpose or solves any stated problem, and it appears the garment of Igaue would function equally well as the claimed invention.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 36 and 52 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. The prior art of record fails to disclose a method of forming the claimed article comprising the step of contacting the absorptive device with the liquid impermeable material before the liquid impermeable material is dry.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. U.S. Patents 4,698,847; 5,758,367; 5,800,245; 5,888,118; and 6,502,250 pertain to garments having liquid impermeable material with fibers affixed thereto.
